Celebrities View Hoffman Portrait of Mrs. Bullard at Marshall Place Tea

The historic Marshall Place, built in 1786, was the site of the tea party at which Mrs. John Bullard welcomed Gen. George Washington to Boston in 1790. Last Sunday, the 250th anniversary of the meeting was observed by a group of distinguished guests who gathered at the fourth floor lounge of the hotel to view a portrait of Mrs. Bullard. The portrait was painted by Mrs. Margaret M. Hoffman, who has been a member of the Bostonian Society for 20 years. Mrs. Hoffman's work is on display at the Boston Athenaeum.

Mrs. Bullard was a prominent figure in Boston society, and her portrait was a fitting tribute to her legacy. The tea was attended by many notable figures, including the mayor of Boston, who spoke about the significance of the event.

Mrs. Bullard was a founding member of the Boston Athenaeum, and her portrait is now on permanent display in the hotel's lounge area. The hotel's management expressed their gratitude to Mrs. Hoffman for her work, and they hoped that the portrait would continue to be a source of inspiration for future generations.

The event was also an opportunity to reflect on the rich history of Boston and its people. The hotel's management expressed their appreciation for the contributions of the Bostonian Society, which has been a leader in preserving and celebrating the city's history.
