Raising His Salary.

"You told me last week that you thought to raise my salary," said Briggs.

"Oh, yes," replied his employer.

"Well, I did. I raised it after some trouble. Believe me, I had a very hard time about it this week."

It is remarkable how virtuous and generous disposed every man is when he is in a position to make a play. We uniformly applaud what is right and condemn what is wrong when it costs us nothing but the sentiment—Hazlitt.

Books on Southern New Hampshire.

A great many vacationists who yearly visit the old Granite State bend their way towards the north. The White Mountains and the northern section of New Hampshire are not the only portions of the state where natural beauty and pure atmosphere abound.

The southeastern and southwestern portions of New Hampshire are equally delightful. This territory is beautifully described in the two publications, "Southern New Hampshire" and "North-West New Hampshire" issued by the Passenger Department, Boston & Maine Railroad, Boston. These books will be mailed upon receipt of two cents for each book.

OBITUARY.

Joseph Thos Smith, a native and lifelong resident of Schuylerville, died in this village on Saturday, July 12. He was the son of Jas. T. Smith who, for many years, was a well known farmer and watch-maker in Schuylerville.

Joseph, Jr., was born in 1875 in the very house where he died. He received his education in our public schools. In 1898 he married Miss Maud Curtis of Saratoga Springs and supposed he had settled down for his life work here. He became the victim of an unusual disease which refused to yield to the most expert treatment. The malady which, medical men called it called in medical parlance, "rheumatoid arthritis deformans," it caused the joints to grow stiff and finally to turn to bone. Mr. Smith became crippled about four years ago and had settled down to his bed for some time when he was there, bound as by chains to the bed, white and pallid, he was a most pitiable sight for the family. And yet there, bound as by chains to the bed, he was a most pitiable sight for the family. And yet there, bound as by chains to the bed, he was a most pitiable sight for the family.

He was a most pitiable sight for the family. And yet there, bound as by chains to the bed, he was a most pitiable sight for the family.

A NOTABLE ANNIVERSARY

BIRTHDAY OF MRS. MARSHALL.

Her Home Was Decorated With Beautiful Flowers.

Seldom, if ever have we enjoyed a birthday party as we did the one we attended at the "Marshall Place" last week, to commemorate the eighty-first anniversary of its dear and honored mistress, Mrs. William Marshall, surrounded by her children and grandchildren, and a host of friends. She stood among them a representative of the past, the life-long friend of many, and the well beloved of those most dear to her. Her beautiful home was decorated with flowers from her own grounds, white countless blossoms and many gifts sold of the remembrance and kindly wishes of her loving friends, for all seemed it an honor to be included in the birthday party. We only regretted that all who were invited could not be present, for it is not given to one often to have such a pleasure.

In the pleasant rooms were many tables where refreshments were served, which were fully enjoyed by all.

Our beloved hostess has not escaped the sorrows that come to many, but years and sorrows have left light traces upon her face.

With a courage that has never faltered, she has comforted and sustained others through bitter grief. She has shared her home with the homeless, and the "Marshall Place" has long been known for its boundless hospitality.

So we leave the beautiful old place, and the dear friend crowded with years and the love of all, thankful to have been a guest at this eighty-first birthday party.

Gen. W. H. Hughes Assigns.

Gen. W. H. Hughes of Granville, one of the largest slate manufacturers in the country, assemblyman for Washington county, chairman of the Republican County Committee, recently treasurer of Washington county, and during Gov. Black's term of office held a position on his staff, made an assignment on Tuesday to E. H. Porter of Saratoga Springs. The amount of his liabilities cannot at present be learned, but are said to be large.

English in the Language.

"You must learn the English language before you can go shopping in England," says a girl who has just returned from a recent visit to that country to tell of the difficulties met in the shops. "How can it be so, when they are slippers, all boots are high, and you can't save your life get a spoon of thread because there is no such thing—only a reel of cotton. If you fish cotton, shooting for instance, you ask for cotton, and the tape needed to run the ribbons in your gowns is a bottle. There is not such a thing as a shirt waist to be had in all England, for they have nothing but blouses, and one would go continually with wet feet if she did not learn to ask for gaiters."

Chemical Effects of Lightning.

Lightning works chemically. It has the power of developing a peculiar odor which has been variously compared to that of phosphorus, nitrous gas and the frequently burning sulfur of gunpowder. It was mentioned a few years ago by Dr. Darcie which diffused such a sulphurous stench through the atmosphere that he and his marauding companions could scarcely breathe, particularly when they entered into the wood.

His Mistake.

"Is this a commission house?" asked the tall man.

"Yes, sir," said the commission merchant. "What can I do for you?"

"Well, if you sell commissions I'd like to buy one, if they're not too dear, for my case I want a lieutenant's commission in the army, for my son wants to be a soldier, and he's going out to West Point."—Baltimore Herald.

The Branch of Peace.

"How did you come to select Olive as your wife?"

"Well, you see, my wife's father objected to our marriage, and when the little case he forced us to let him have the money for the credit."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Met Negatively.

"You asked her father for her hand?"

"Yes."

"And he refused you?"

"No, he didn't. He said I could have both of 'em."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.
